gone fishing!

When one thinks about the Cleft Palate Journal, the name of Hughlett L. Morris always comes to mind. This isn't unusual. Hugh, as editor of the Cleft Palate Journal for the past six years, nurtured a rather helpless infant known as the Cleft Palate Bulletin, and developed it into a mature and healthy publication which is widely known and respected throughout the world.

Dr. Hugh Morris is now putting aside his red pencil and glue pot. With this issue of the Cleft Palate Journal, he is stepping down as editor. He leaves a Journal which serves as a means of communication for not only the members of the American Cleft Palate Association, but also other interested personnel throughout the world, some in relatively isolated areas. Hugh devoted many hours with endless details for the Association in the preparation of the issues of our publication. He met the demands of each issue along with his busy schedule without complaint and made the job look easy. This is the trademark of a compassionate editor.

Hugh Morris may now have time to go fishing, but his influence on the Cleft Palate Journal will remain. Our thanks to a "volunteer" who is a real "professional."

Robert L. Harding, Editor
